Bernard John Jilek

April 2, 1939 — January 29, 2026

Bernard John Jilek, 86, of Dillon, passed away Thursday, January 29, 2026 at his home. He was born on April 2, 1939, in Chicago, IL to Francis & Rose (Belsan) Jilek.

The complete obituary will be published once finalized.

Arrangements are under the direction of Brundage Funeral Home. Condolences for the family may be posted online at www.brundagefuneralhome.com

Are you satisfied with your height?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

"There was shrinkage! Shrinkage!" – George Costanza

For years, my various physicians let me skate by.

I would dutifully (if trepidatiously) hop onto the scales for my weight assessment, but I was allowed to fudge on my Body Mass Index by self-identifying my height.

Not so this last visit. In an "Up against the wall!" moment reminiscent of a gambling den raid, I was confronted with the realization that I have shrunk two inches since my peak. (Who needs tongue depressors when the clinic has self-image depressors?)

Granted, I had already downgraded my self-identification several years ago when I was at the McWane Science Center in Birmingham, Alabama and a ceiling-mounted laser doohickey gave me the unsolicited information that I was one inch shorter than I thought. ("Second opinion: that comb-over ain't foolin' anybody! Better self-deprecation through science!")

Loss of height is a normal part of the aging process (part of the anthropological shift from "hunter-gatherer" to "hunter-gatherer of senior discounts"), and maybe I have actually lost a full two inches – or maybe my "official" measurement from high school was overly ambitious.

The faculty did run the measurements like a "Lucy and Ethel in the candy factory" assembly-line process, and they did dispense some other information that, in retrospect, is highly dubious. ("The dinosaurs would still be alive today if they had ducked under these wooden desks. No unidentifiable mammalish lifeforms were killed in the preparation of this meal. Once you earn your diploma, there will be a tug-of-war between companies desperately seeking laps runners and companies desperately seeking sentence diagrammers.")

Perhaps this medical-chart update is not as jarring for me as for some of my classmates who always felt "10-feet tall and bulletproof." I harbored more realistic expectations of being "5-foot-11 and, say, do you realize how many major arteries are severed by flicking paper footballs each year?"

Nothing dampens your virility like gradually going from "How's the weather up there?" to "Stand on this milk crate and tell me if my underarm deodorant is still working."

Not to be overly melodramatic, but this is the sort of milestone that forces you to look your own mortality in the face. Granted, you have to stand on tiptoes and crane your neck, but you look your own mortality in the face. ("Whoa! At this rate, I could use a shoebox for a casket!")

On the other hand, in the grand scheme of things, this is nothing to get bent out of shape over. No, we have our old pal osteoporosis for that. ("Young lady, could you get the calcium tablets off the top shelf for me? I assume you're a young lady. All I can see is the top of my shoes.")

I turned to AI for solace. X's Grok chatbot reassured me that my height is average (or just a skosh above average) for males my age. But maybe Grok is programmed to sugarcoat replies to users' plaintive inquiries. ("You would be surprised by how many Nobel laureates abuse handicapped parking spaces. In excess of 110 percent of America's governors have reported erotic dreams about Rosie the robot in the 'Jetsons' cartoons...")

Sigh I could stand taller if only my old high school would send some encouraging words.

"School? Nah, your parents walked five miles to and from the MALT SHOP in waist-deep snow, uphill both ways."

There was vindication! Vindication!

Park people: Volunteers welcome visitors to FWP destinations

Wanted: People who like to meet new people, spend time in Montana's natural beauty and its cultural significance and learn about Montana state parks and how to protect them.

If this sounds like a great way to spend your time, you might want to consider volunteering for Montana State Parks.

According to last year's volunteer service report, park volunteers collectively spent more than 33,000 hours at state parks and fishing access sites. Campground hosts claimed most of those hours, and the majority of those hours were in parks in northwest Montana. Ground maintenance crews and visitor center attendants provided the second and third highest volunteer hours.

"Year after year, dedicated volunteers quietly return to Montana's state parks, and their steady presence is what turns beautiful places into welcoming sites for residents and visitors alike," said Beth Shumate, assistant division administrator for FWP's Parks and Outdoor Recreation division.

According to Duane Schlabach, FWP's AmeriCorps/volunteer/interpretation services program manager, there is often a waiting list for campground hosts in the most popular sites, including Flathead State Park and Whitefish Lake State Park.

But while campground host positions are the most popular in northwest Montana, other regions are reporting that volunteerism has been trending downward while visitor numbers are trending upward. Volunteers are always needed for visitor center attendants, park naturalists and people interested in special events and projects, according to Schlabach.

"We're always looking for ways to encourage people to volunteer," he said.

In addition to the volunteer page on FWP's website, postings are also featured on job boards such as KamperJobs and WorkKamper. Folks can also check in with their FWP regional office for opportunities.

To encourage volunteerism, Schlabach offers this quote from Margaret Meade: "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

Secretary Christi Jacobsen launches 2026 poll worker recruitment campaign

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen announced a new statewide campaign to recruit poll workers for the 2026 Primary and General Elections, continuing her efforts to support county election offices and strengthen Montana's election workforce. The campaign builds on the Secretary of State's online poll worker recruitment tool, which connects interested Montanans directly with their local election administrators.

Secretary Jacobsen's 2026 initiative again highlights Montana's partnership with Vet the Vote, a nonpartisan national organization that encourages veterans and military family members to volunteer as poll workers. Through this partnership, the Secretary is asking Montana veterans to continue their tradition of service by helping ensure safe, secure, and efficient elections in communities across the state.

"Poll workers are the backbone of our elections in Montana," said Secretary Jacobsen. "I'm incredibly grateful for the thousands of Montanans who have stepped up to serve in past elections, and I'm calling on new volunteers, to join them in 2026."

Secretary Jacobsen urges all eligible Montanans to consider serving, noting that fully staffed polling places help keep lines short, assist voters, and safeguard the accurate, timely reporting of election results.

Montanans interested in serving as poll workers can learn more and sign up through the Secretary of State's poll worker recruitment tool at <https://votemt.gov/poll-worker-application/>.
