Secretary Christi Jacobsen: 'Free SAVE tool flags hundreds of deceased voter records'

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen announced that the free use of the federal government's SAVE tool has flagged roughly 900 voter records of deceased individuals who were previously not included in the death file that the Secretary of State's Office received from the state health department.

Through public outreach, Secretary Jacobsen announced a partnership with the Trump Administration to provide free access to the SAVE tool to ensure voter roll accuracy and, for the first time in history, to verify the citizenship status of Montana's voter registration list.

"Until now, Montana election officials have never had access to the SAVE tool, and in a few short weeks, we have already identified a large number of ineligible voter records," said Secretary Jacobsen. "The SAVE tool is a valuable addition to our ongoing work to maintain up-to-date and accurate voter rolls in Montana."

Under Secretary Jacobsen's leadership, Montana has become a national leader in voter roll maintenance. Last year, Secretary Jacobsen proudly announced that Montana received the 2025 National Association of State Election Directors (NASD) Innovators Award for her "Death of a Loved One Initiative," which partners with funeral homes to simplify the process for families to remove deceased loved ones from Montana's voter rolls.

Now, Secretary Jacobsen's partnership for free access to the SAVE tool has enabled election officials to identify deceased voters even more quickly, alleviating the burden on grieving families, while improving voter roll accuracy and reducing the number of undeliverable ballots.

"Our goal is for election officials to be able to update the voter rolls in real time, without bureaucracy getting in the way, and this partnership brings us closer to that goal," said Secretary Jacobsen.

With the SAVE tool flagging additional voter records, election officials are now following up in several ways, including:

- Working with the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services (DPHHS), to begin verifying the names of the 900 deceased individuals to have the counties remove them from the voter rolls;
- Identifying opportunities to speed the receipt and sharing of this information with election officials in the future;
- Reviewing the voter status of the flagged voter records, including whether ballots were sent to those individuals and whether any had received voter credit for participating in an election where a ballot was counted.

Election officials are also continuing to verify citizenship status, including the 23 voter records previously flagged by the SAVE tool.

Experience STEM in action at MT Tech's Spring Tech Day

When Kyle Mann was a high school student in Billings, he found himself trying to decide if college was right for him, and if so, what he would major in.

Montana Technological University's Tech Day made a difference.

"I really enjoyed the environmental engineering session and the department," he said. "I also liked the small size of Montana Tech. Going to Tech Day and doing the tours and everything really helped me settle on which college I wanted to attend and my major."

Montana Technological University, Montana's STEM university, is inviting students who want to make a difference through careers in science, technology, engineering and math to Spring Tech Day on Friday, March 6, 2026. The event will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Spring Tech Day is a one-of-a-kind, hands-on college visit designed for prospective students who want to experience Montana Tech's programs up close. Participants will spend the day on the university's historic Uptown Butte campus, exploring academic areas of interest through interactive lab sessions, campus tours, and conversations with faculty and current students. Sessions offered will include seven engineering sessions, three healthcare sessions, one occupational safety and health session, one business session, and one session focused on certificate, associate degree, trade, and workforce programs at Highlands College.

Now a sophomore, Mann is vice president of the Environmental Engineering Club and has a summer internship at Spring Creek Mine outside of Decker, Montana under his belt. He hasn't decided yet what type of environmental engineering he wants to pursue, but he is encouraged by Montana Tech's excellent placement rates.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics notes the median pay for environmental engineers in 2024 was $104,170, and the industry is projected to grow 4% over the next decade.

Dr. Raja Nagisetty, head of the Environmental Engineering Dept, will lead one of the sessions. Montana Tech's Environmental Eng. Dept. structures its session around a central theme.

Parents and guests will not be allowed into Nursing and Cadaver Lab sessions due to space limitations.

Montana Tech will also host sessions for students interested in its other academic programs. For questions, contact the Admissions Office at admissions@mtech.edu or (406) 496-4754.

James Brown Receives Key NAIC Committee Assignments for 2026, Strengthening Advocacy Ability for Montana Consumers

Montana State Auditor and Commissioner of Securities and Insurance, James Brown, has been appointed to several influential National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) committees and task forces for 2026, keeping Montana at the forefront of national insurance policy and consumer protection work.

Commissioner Brown will serve on the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee, which oversees issues and activities related to home, auto, and business insurance and works to address availability and affordability challenges in property and casualty markets. He will also serve on the Homeowners Market Data Call (C) Task Force, which develops and oversees data collection and analysis on homeowners' insurance, helping regulators better understand trends in premiums, coverage, and market conditions.

In addition, Commissioner Brown has been appointed to the Innovation, Cybersecurity, and Technology (H) Committee, which focuses on emerging technologies, cybersecurity risks, and the use of data and artificial intelligence in insurance, and to the Government Relations (EX) Leadership Council, which coordinates NAIC engagement with federal and state policymakers on key legislative and regulatory issues. He will also serve as the NAIC American Indian and Alaska Native Liaison, a role focused on improving communication, access, and regulatory attention to insurance issues affecting Native American communities. Finally, to govern the financial soundness of insurance companies collecting premiums and offering coverage to Montanans, the State Auditor's Office is a member of the Accreditation Scope and Alignment Working Group.

"These assignments ensure that Montana has a strong seat at the table on the issues that matter most to our families, farmers, small businesses, and tribal communities," Commissioner Brown said. "From homeowners' insurance and catastrophe exposure to data privacy and innovation, these roles will help us advocate for fair rates, strong consumer protections, and a stable insurance market for all Montanans."
