Martha Troth, 90, of Dillon, passed away suddenly from a fall on Saturday, March 28, 2026. Full obituary to follow. A Celebration of Life will be announced later this spring.

Enhancing Safety on Highway 91 - Stay Informed!

The Montana Department of Transportation (MDT) and its partner Jeffery Contracting, LLC anticipate beginning work mid-April on a curve on State Highway 91 south of Dillon near Carrigan Lane, weather and other factors permitting. This project is expected to take a single season to complete and will enhance safety and driving conditions by easing the sharp curve, widening paved shoulders, and flattening roadside slopes. Crews will also upgrade signs, pavement markings, and roadway striping, as well as add rumble strips.

Traffic flow will be maintained during construction, but drivers may experience reduced speeds through the work zone.

"No Kings" Protest Returns to Dillon's Kiwanis Park*Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

Approximately 75 people gathered Saturday, March 28, at Kiwanis Park in Dillon for another "No Kings" protest, part of what organizers describe as a recurring nationwide demonstration.

The event, held along Montana Street, is one of a series of protests that appear to take place quarterly in communities across the United States. According to the No Kings website, similar demonstrations were planned in more than 3,300 locations nationwide on the same day.

Participants in Dillon held signs with messages including "No Kings," calls to abolish ICE, and other concerns tied to policies and issues raised since President Donald Trump took office. A small number of counter-protesters were also present.

Passing motorists frequently honked as they drove by the park, signaling both support and opposition.

The Dillon Police Department and Beaverhead County Sheriff's Office were on site during the event. Law enforcement monitored the gathering to ensure it remained peaceful and assisted pedestrians crossing the busy Montana Street corridor by directing them to use designated crosswalks.

Commissioner Brown Urges Montanans to Learn About Conservation Leases That Pay Landowners to Protect Working Agricultural Lands

As a member of the Montana Land Board, State Auditor James Brown is pleased to inform Montana ranchers and farmers about the opportunity to apply for Habitat Conservation Leases managed by Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks (FWP).

Last year, Brown voted as a member of the Land Board to approve Habitat Conservation Leases covering 112,000 acres of working agricultural land in Montana. These leases offer compensation to landowners in exchange for them agreeing to keep the land in production agriculture and enhance public access.

"Although FWP has been working on the Habitat Conservation Lease program for a few years, my recent conversations with hardworking Montana farmers and ranchers revealed that many are still unaware of the program," Brown said. "That is why I have made it a priority to highlight the benefit of Habitat Conservation Leases and encourage more people to apply before the deadline on April 15, 2026."

Habitat Conservation Leases are not block management; the program is more flexible and landowner-friendly. Additionally, the leases are not funded directly by Montana taxpayers, but rather, by a mix of marijuana tax revenue, proceeds from state hunting licenses, and the federal tax on hunting equipment imposed under the Pittman-Robertson Act. Habitat Montana funds are matched at a 1:3 ratio with federal funds, meaning every dollar from Habitat Montana is supplemented by three federal dollars.

As a fourth-generation Montanan, Brown views this program as a chance for rural landowners to uphold and safeguard traditional Montana values. Brown stated: "The Habitat Conservation Lease program puts money in the hands of farmers and ranchers, which can be used, for example, to pay off a mortgage or buy new equipment. Protecting Montana's farming and ranching community is a personal priority of mine, and this source of funding can make a positive difference for my Montana neighbors. I want to spread the word that applying for a Habitat Conservation Lease could be a good fit for landowners across the state."

For more information, people can visit <https://fwp.mt.gov/conservation/habitat/habitat-conservation/lease-program>. If the public has additional questions about the program or the duties of the Land Board, they are encouraged to contact Mimi Wolok with the Auditor's Office at (406) 444-7834 or mwolok@mt.gov.

 Don't Quit

Never stop working

Determination

You improve from being perseverant
 You learn from being perseverant

Don't Quit- perseverance

As in: There is always pressure.

Like sports, from Football, basketball, baseball, Wrestling, track, and even day to day life.

There is always harder competition All over

With not staying locked in not practicing enough not putting forth full effort

Unless you try
 Unless you don't quit
 Unless you lock in
 Unless you practice

You can improve from practice
 When you try
 When you improve
 When you practice
 It's a mindset.

Don't Quit- perseverance.

As in: When times are hard someone else has it worse than you do. Other people have worse days than you.
