Garnet D. Mann

Garnet D. Mann, Johnstown, formerly of MT, died June 9, 2026, in Johnstown. Born January 28, 1955, in Lamar, Colorado, then she moved to Montana where she spent the majority of her life. She first lived in Philipsburg and then Dillon. She was the daughter of Cliff Gorman and Wanda M. Mower.

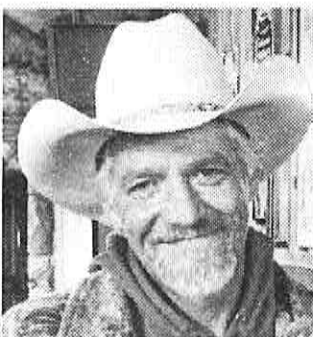

Garnet is preceded in death by parents, sister Valerie Robinson and nephew Michael Knapp.

She is survived by loving children Bob Connors and Alecia (Matt Morgan); grandchildren Kylie Connors and Sienna and Jack Morgan; nieces Michelle Stewart and Robin Robinson.

Garnet loved spending as much time as possible with her grandchildren. She loved the outdoors, which included camping, side by side riding, road tripping and sightseeing. She was a very selfless person and was always concerned about everyone else's well-being.

At her request, there will be no public viewing or services. Henderson Funeral Home, East Hills, is serving the family.

Vance Allen Jones

Vance Allen Jones, 53, of Dillon, Montana, passed away in Bozeman, Montana, after a brief but courageous battle with cancer.

Born in Sheridan, Montana, to George Jones and Gloria Douthard, and lovingly raised by his stepmother Faye Jones, Allen was a true Montana original. The mountains, rivers, and open country of Montana weren't just where he lived—they were part of who he was. He found happiness in the simple things: fishing a quiet stream, hunting in the hills, searching for sheds and horns, rock hunting, and spending time outdoors with the people he loved.

If you knew Allen, you knew he rarely missed an opportunity to make someone laugh. He was a goofball at heart, always joking around, pulling a prank, or finding a way to lighten the mood. His laughter was contagious, and his presence could brighten any room.

Allen was especially known for his storytelling. Whether he was recounting an adventure from the mountains or spinning a tale that grew a little taller with each telling, he had a gift for keeping people entertained. One of his favorite sayings was,

"You can make anyone believe you if you tell the story good enough." Those who knew him best often found themselves wondering where the truth ended and the story began—and that's exactly how Allen liked it. His stories, humor, and larger-than-life personality created countless memories that his family and friends will treasure forever.

Above all, Allen loved his family. He is survived by his daughters, Mayson Jones, Jayden Jones, and his son Taylor Ingram who were a source of pride and love throughout his life. He is also survived by his beloved partner, Shawna Miller, whose love for Allen knew no bounds. Through good times and difficult days, especially during his battle with cancer, Shawna remained faithfully by his side. Their love was built on friendship, loyalty, laughter, and a deep devotion to one another.

Though his time here feels far too short, Allen leaves behind a legacy of laughter, adventure, and unforgettable stories. He taught those around him to appreciate the outdoors, enjoy life's simple pleasures, and never underestimate the power of a good story.

As family and friends gather to remember him, they will no doubt share stories of their own—some true, some perhaps stretched a little farther than they remember—just the way Allen would have wanted.

One of Allen's favorite quotes, from A River Runs Through It by Norman Maclean, was:

"Eventually, all things merge into one, and a river runs through it."

For those who knew and loved him, that river will always carry memories of his laughter, his stories, his love for Montana's outdoors, and the countless lives he touched along the way.

A celebration of Allen's life will be held at a later date.

May we remember Allen in the quiet Montana mountains, along the riverbanks he loved, in the laughter shared among friends, and in every story worth telling.

Forever loved, forever remembered, and deeply missed.

Pronghorn Pursuit Brings Runners and Families Together for National Trails Day Celebration

The Beaverhead Trails Coalition welcomed runners, walkers, and families to its annual Pronghorn Pursuit on Saturday, combining a community fundraiser with a celebration of National Trails Day.

The event offered something for participants of all ages and abilities, with options including a challenging 15K race, a 5K run/walk, and a 5K Kids division, giving runners and families an opportunity to enjoy Beaverhead County's trail system while supporting the coalition's work.

Beyond the races, the event featured a variety of family activities. Concierge OT hosted a rock-painting station where children could create colorful keepsakes while enjoying the festivities.

Participants also had the opportunity to search for several Beaverhead Chamber of Commerce Treasures hidden along the trail system. Among the unique finds were handcrafted blown-glass cowboy hats created by students at the University of Montana Western, adding an extra element of adventure to the day.

After crossing the finish line, participants gathered to enjoy complimentary donuts and celebrate a successful morning outdoors.

POST-ELECTION AUDIT PROCESS

Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen announced that the state's post-election audit process is officially underway.

The Montana State Board of Canvassers—representatives from the Attorney General's Office, Office of Public Instruction, and State Auditor's Office—convened at the State Capitol to randomly select the races and precincts to be audited for Montana's 2026 Primary Election post-election audit. Participants took turns rolling multiple 10-sided dice to determine the selections.

Montana's Post-Election Audit Act requires manually hand counting the votes of the selected races to compare with the previously tabulated results. Laws passed by the 2023 Legislature expanded the state's Post-Election Audit Act, increasing the number of races included in the post-election audit, and requiring counties that tabulate results by hand to conduct a post-election audit.

"Montana's elections have been nationally recognized, and one of the greatest strengths in our election procedures is the use of paper ballots and the Post-Election Audit Act that confirms the results of those paper ballots," said Secretary Jacobsen.

The Secretary of State's website contains the list of random-sample audit selections from Tuesday's meeting (click here). Counties across the state will begin conducting the post-election audit process before completing their county canvassing by June 16. The State Canvass is currently scheduled for June 29.

Got Father's Day questions for Dad?
Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

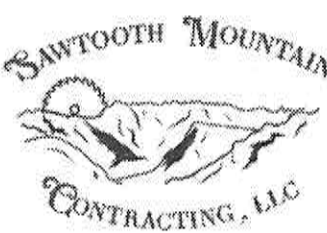

"Ask Dad, HE knows!"

That's the message on the Sweet Caporal cigarette ad hanging in Mr. Gower's drugstore in the holiday classic "It's A Wonderful Life," and children since time immemorial have followed that credo (no matter how many times spoilsport Mom has scolded, "Don't follow that credo - you don't know where it has been!")

True, the frequency and tone of questions may vary with individual family dynamics (touchy-feely?, dysfunctional?, middle-of-the-road?), the onset of teenage angst and divisive "generation gap" issues; but fathers have always been the old-school version of a cutting-edge data center, assuming that data centers use Bud Light for cooling and reserve part of their electricity for a flashing "Licensed to Grill" sign.

From that first unspoken but mutually understood baby query ("Pop, did you really think I could so easily be cajoled into uttering 'dada' instead of 'mama' first? Talk about dad jokes!") to the dreaded, gut-wrenching plea "Dad, don't you think it's time you surrendered your truck keys – right after you dislodge the Ram from the assisted-living bingo table?," the questions keep on coming.

Sure, some time-honored questions have become outdated. "Dad, why is the sky blue?" used to be a thing. In the age of synchronized staring down at screens, the more common query is, "Dad, what is this 'sky' of which people speak?"

But the probing continues, whether out of curiosity or need or an epiphany about shared values. ("Dad, that ammo you used to scare away my last suitor – do you think the NRA can keep the feds from banning it?")

Granted, some persistent questions can be annoying (I'm looking at YOU, "Are we there yet?"), but we fathers bask in glory when our years of study and life experience let us dispense practical instructions to our offspring. If you want to know how to change a tire or operate a razor or mend a broken heart or feign a heart attack when asked to help on the feminine hygiene aisle, we're your "go to" guy.

Admittedly, fathers used to accumulate useful knowledge faster, because a higher percentage of them served in the military, participated in Boy Scouts or grew up learning outdoors skills on the farm. Now Dad thinks to himself, "Wow, I deserve a merit badge for finding an app to help Junior select a YouTube video about unclogging the sink!"

Dads enjoy attentive questions about their own well-behaved childhood, but are equally comfortable speculating on the long-term goals of the family line. ("Dad, if I do everything right, do you think someday my children...or their children's children...will get to see the final vote tally in California?")

Dads have finite resources and a mountain of responsibilities, so they must sometimes regretfully answer, "No" when asked about reading the ninth bedtime story or providing a piggyback ride that involves Sheriff Woody spurs or extending curfew or loaning the car.

But other times, they can give a full-throated affirmative answer. ("Dad, did you ever notice that every time you and Mom have an infrequent 'date night' scheduled, the babysitter is unable to single-handedly quell my fears about the monsters in my closet?" "Yes! Yes! Yes!")

Ah, yes, when children and their fathers communicate with love and mutual respect, it's a wonderful life.

And every time a bell rings, a new pair of black socks is matched with a pair of sandals!
