Montana Opens the Door to Digital Asset
Innovation with Financial Freedom and Innovation Act

Montana is officially open for business in the digital economy. Montana State Auditor and Commissioner of Securities and Insurance (CSI), James Brown, announced that Senate Bill 265—the Financial Freedom and Innovation Act—has taken effect, marking a major step forward in the state's leadership on blockchain and digital asset innovation.

With SB 265, Montana becomes one of the first states to create a clear path for companies issuing network tokens, a type of digital asset that powers decentralized services like computing, data storage, and media streaming. By setting a transparent framework and strong consumer protections, Montana is sending a strong message: we welcome entrepreneurs, innovators, and investors to build the future of blockchain here.

SB 265, issuers of qualifying network tokens can now apply directly with CSI for exemption from traditional securities registration, provided they submit required documents, disclosures, and obtain approval.

The business impact could be significant. By reducing regulatory uncertainty, Montana expects to attract more digital asset ventures, startups, and corporations to operate in-state—supporting new jobs, new technologies, and increased state revenue from economic growth, business incorporation, and associated tax activity.

The Commissioner's office is now accepting submissions from network token issuers. For further information, please contact the Securities Division at 406-444-3815 or CSI.Securities@mt.gov.

#8 Montana Western Football Topples Southern Oregon 40-20 Saturday

The Montana Western football team (4-1, 1-0 FC West) earned its first-ever win at Southern Oregon (1-4, 0-1 FC West) Saturday with a commanding 40-20 victory. Prior to the game the Bulldogs were 0-9 playing in Ashland, Ore.

"Great win for the team in a place that's really hard to get a win at," Head Coach Ryan Nourse said. "SOU fought hard and made it tough. We ran into an entirely new defense doubling Nourse on every play, and I am so proud of our offensive line and running backs for stepping up in running the ball and dominating the game. We played really well in the defensive backfield, they got after the ball and secured a bunch of interceptions. It was a good team win."

The UMW offense totaled 470 yards of total offense, marking its fourth straight game with over 450 yards. The Bulldogs earned 21 first downs and converted on six third downs and one fourth down. Western ran for a season-best 207 rushing yards and added 263 passing yards. The Red and Black scored on five-of-six red zone chances.

Quarterback Michael Palandri threw for 263 yards and two touchdowns, including a 70-yard toss to Seth Shook for UMW's second score of the game.

Shook was the Bulldogs leading receiver, tallying 86 yards and two touchdowns on three receptions. Jonathan Kirkley (65) and Eli Nourse (62) also got in on the action, though uncharacteristically, neither managed to find the end zone.

With the Raiders' defense focused on slowing down Western's prolific passing game, the Bulldogs ground game took off. Aidan Lammers rushed for a game-best 79 yards and one touchdown while Jakob Humphrey added 64 yards and two TDs, including a 58-yard effort to put UMW up 21-7 at the end of the first quarter.

Maclain Burckley went two-of-four on PATs and two-of-three on field goals in the contest. He also averaged 50.0 yards per punt, including a monster 66-yard effort, which is the longest in the Frontier Conference in 2025.

Legendary Anglers and Authors

Join us at Patagonia Dillon for a rare evening with legendary anglers and authors Yvon Chouinard and Craig Mathews, as they unveil their new book Pheasant Tail Simplicity: Recipes and Techniques for Successful Fly Fishing, through a moderated conversation with Brayn Gregson.

This event is a chance to talk story and hear adventures from decades on the water, guided by two voices who continue to bring fly fishing back to its essence—where skill, knowledge, and technique matter far more than gear.
