A Note of Gratitude

Our community is truly fortunate to have such professional and compassionate medical professionals. Our family would like to thank each and every member of the hospital staff for the kindness shown to my father during his stay.

A special thank you to Dr. Anna Loge for her dedicated care over the past several years, and to the nursing staff for those small, human gestures that meant so much-especially the nurse who offered her personal phone so Dad could listen to his favorite old country music. These moments brought great comfort to both him and our family.

We also wish to extend our deepest gratitude to the Hospice staff for their dedication and for ensuring he was comfortable during his final days, and to Katie for her exceptional in-home caregiving.

Finally, thank you to Bryan at Affordable Funeral and Cremation Service. You made a difficult process much easier, and we deeply appreciated your compassion and fair pricing. Having navigated this journey for three family members now, I cannot recommend your services highly enough.

UMW Business Student Passes LEAN Bronze Certification Exam

University of Montana Western senior Cael Murgel has passed the LEAN Bronze Certification Exam, an industry-recognized credential that demonstrates proficiency in manufacturing efficiency and quality improvement practices.

Murgel, a Business Administration major, achieved the certification through the Society of Manufacturing Engineers (SME). The LEAN Bronze Certification focuses on the practical application of lean principles, including improving workflows, reducing waste, and increasing productivity within operational settings.

The certification is typically pursued by professionals with several years of experience in manufacturing or operations environments, making it a notable accomplishment for an undergraduate student.

At its core, LEAN is a methodology centered on improving processes to achieve measurable results.

Murgel prepared for the certification exam by attending a six-week professional development course offered by the Montana Manufacturing Extension Center (MMEC), which is housed in the Montana State University Norm Asbjornson College of Engineering. MMEC Senior Business Advisor (and UM alumnus) Steve Dybdal led Murgel and local manufacturing professionals through the fundamentals of LEAN and how to apply them to enhance production operations. The course concludes with test preparation sessions, followed by the certification exam.

Murgel credits his experience in the classroom as a key factor in pursuing the certification.

MMEC offers limited scholarships to Montana university students to attend this Operational Excellence training and prepare for the exam. For more information on this program, contact MMEC at 406-994-3812.

Dillon Public Library invites the Public to attend
upcoming 2026 Child Abuse and Neglect awareness programs:
Tuesday 4/21/2026 AND 4/28/2026
5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Join Melissa Winger for a two-part course focused on understanding how coping skills and emotional patterns are passed down through families. Parents will learn to recognize their own emotional habits, build awareness around what shows up in their family, and practice healthier ways to respond to stress and big feelings.

This course will support parents in strengthening their own emotion regulation skills so they can develop a greater capacity to connect, and greater confidence to better support their children's emotional growth.

Melissa Winger is the Early Childhood Policy Manager at Zero to Five Montana, a policy, advocacy, and systems-building nonprofit organization. Trained as a Marriage and Family Therapist, her work focuses on strengthening early childhood systems, supporting families, and elevating community and parent voice to advance policies that help children thrive.

Melissa co-founded the Early Childhood Coalition of Beaverhead County and Village Play Space, where she led parenting classes and community-based programming to connect families and build local systems of support. Her current work centers on supporting local early childhood organizations through technical assistance and professional development. She also serves as the lead facilitator for both the Circle of Parents Montana Network and the Montana Early Childhood Network, fostering cross-sector collaboration, education, and resource sharing statewide. A parent of three young children, Melissa's commitment to early childhood work is both personal and professional.

This is a presentation in conjunction with a grant received from Montana Children's Trust Fund. The grant allows authority figures to present information that brings awareness of Child Abuse and Neglect to our community. The public is welcome to attend, and there will be light snacks provided.

Montana Western Names J.C. Isakson as Next Men's Basketball Head Coach

A familiar face is returning to the Bulldog sidelines as the University of Montana Western has named alumnus J.C. Isakson the next head coach of its men's basketball program.

"I'm excited to welcome J.C. back to Montana Western to lead the men's basketball program," said Athletic Director Michael Feuling. "His head coaching experience, familiarity with the Frontier Conference and clear vision for the program — now and in the future — make him an outstanding fit to guide Bulldog basketball forward."

Isakson spent the past eight years at the University of Providence, including five as an assistant with the men's and women's programs and the last three as head men's basketball coach. He also served two years as a graduate assistant at Montana State Billings and began his coaching career as an assistant at Montana Western from 2014 to 2016.

"We are incredibly honored for the opportunity to return to Dillon and Montana Western and be part of the rich tradition of Bulldog basketball. Words can't fully express the impact this community, university and athletic department have had on our lives, as both my wife and I are proud alumni." Isakson said.

"I would like to thank Michael Feuling and the search committee for entrusting us with this responsibility. I also owe tremendous gratitude to Coach Keller for giving me my first opportunity to be a Bulldog, to the men's basketball alumni who have helped build this program — especially my former teammates — and to Coach Pat Jensen for his leadership over the past three years. We are coming home."

A 2013 graduate of the University of Montana Western with a bachelor's degree in business administration, Isakson was a student-athlete for the Bulldogs men's basketball program. During his playing career, he helped lead Montana Western to three NAIA National Tournament appearances and was part of the 2012 Frontier Conference regular-season co-championship team. He was also a two-time Frontier Conference All-Academic Team selection.
